GUANGZHOU

The "City of Lambs", is the capital of Guangdong Province as well as a well-known historical and cultural city and south China's leading industrial and commercial city and trade port. Vegetation is evergreen and flowers bloom all the year round. There are more than 150 famed scenes and sights in Guangzhou and a good variety of modern facilities for recreation and entertainment.

- Museum of Nanyue King Tomb
Dating back to 2,600 years ago, it is by far the largest stone sepulchre found in the Lingnan area. The museum has been built with more than 1,000 burial objects on display.

- Chen Clan Academy
Famously known as the Chens' Ancestral Temple was built with money pooled by all those surnamed Chen residing in the 72 counties of Guangdong. A typical example of classical Lingnan architecture, the temple is marked for its elaborate and ingenious ornamentations. Today the temple is the site of Guangdong Museum of Folk Arts and Crafts. Lirong (Six Banyan Tree) Monastery, a legacy of Buddhism is the site of an ancient bronze Buddhist statue and Flower Pagoda, the tallest ancient structure in Guangzhou.

HANGZHOU

Hangzhou, one of the famous historical and cultural cities in China and one of the country's seven major ancient capitals. As a renowned garden like city and a top tourist city in China, Hangzhou lies by the water and hills, showing natural, exquisite and picturesque scenery. Together with Suzhou of Jiangsu Province, Hangzhou is praised as the "paradise on earth". As early as in the 13th century, Marco Polo, a famous Italian traveler, gasped in admiration at scenic Hangzhou, saying, "It is the most beautiful city in the world".

West Lake

Mountains with luxuriant trees and flowers surround Hangzhou's West Lake. Ancient pavilions, terraces, and gardens-within-gardens have been built on its islets. Amidst the stone pagodas and teahouses, temples, caves and hidden springs within the lake, you'll feel as though you are a figure in a traditional Chinese painting.

Linyin Temple

The Linyin Monastery was built in 326 AD, and still stands there. The

SUZHOU

100 km east of Shanghai, located on the shores of Taihu Lake in Jiangsu Province, Suzhou is a renowned historical and cultural city. The gardens of Suzhou are famous both in and outside China: Canglang Pavilion, Lion Grove, Wangshi Garden and Liuyuan Garden are treasures from the Song, Yuan, Ming, Qing dynasties in southern China. Suzhou also features enchanting landscapes and is well-known as a gathering place for cultured and talented people and natural products. There is a popular Chinese saying describing the beauty of the city: "In heaven there is a Paradise, on earth there are Suzhou and Hangzhou."

SANYA

Lying on the southernmost tip of Hainan Island, the city of Sanya is skirted by mountains on three sides and its 180 km long coast is covered with whitish fine sand. The sea close by features a flat bottom and gentle waves which are ideal for swimming, surfing and motorboat racing. Lagoons, islands, coconut tree groves, beaches and caves are trump cards for Sanya to attract visitors. With 300 fine days a year, Sanya is a famed tourist city and wintering resort.

BEIJING

Capital of the People's Republic of China, is the nation's political, economic and cultural center as well as a hub of transportation and international exchanges. As a celebrated international tourist centre, Beijing's land is beautified by green trees and lots of well-manicured lawns and strewn with former imperial mansions and other old buildings, religious shrines and modern structures. A rich heritage in culture and art brought to life by burgeoning urban development has made Beijing the dream place to be for travelers from around the world.

Tian'anmen Square

Large enough to hold 1 million people, the 440,000-square-metre Tian'anmen Square in the centre of Beijing is the world's largest city square where sunrises and sunsets are observed. The monument to the people's heroes stands in the centre of the square. The Great Hall of the People stands on the western side. The night scene of Tian'anmen Square is definitely a MUST for any visitor to Beijing.

Forbidden City

This Palace Museum was the imperial palace for the Ming and Qing. There is a huge stone ramp carved with intricate dragon and cloud patterns,

Imperial Garden and Nine-Dragon Screen Wall.

Temple Of Heaven

China's largest temple and altar are found in Temple of Heaven, part of a 273 hectare park in Chongwen District today. Built in 1420, it was where Ming and Qing monarchs prayed for good harvests. Major structures are Hall of Prayer for Good Harvest, Imperial Vault of heaven, Circular Altar, and Abstinence Palace.

Great Wall

The 6350 km Great Wall was in China's feudal years a mammoth defense bulwark that serpentine its way across mountains and valleys in the northern part of the country. It came under construction in the 7th century BC but it was Qinshihuang, the founding emperor of the Qin, who brought it to completion.

Ming Tombs

The Ming Tombs are scattered over an area of 40 km in Changping County. Thirteen Ming emperors who ruled China after they moved the capital from Nanjing to Beijing were buried there.

Summer Palace

It was built in 1750 and by far the best-preserved imperial garden in China. As a paragon of Chinese gardens, this huge garden includes Longevity Hill, whose beauty is set off by a multitude of halls, kiosks and trees and Kunming Lake, a huge body of liquid silver.

SHANGHAI

China's leading industrial and commercial city and major financial center is located in the middle of the coast of the Chinese mainland and on the shore of Yangtze River. The policy of reform and opening up to the outside world has transformed Shanghai into a sophisticated metropolis with a well-developed network of land, air and sea transportation.
